"Memories fed the fires of hate. Old battlefields overlapped the new. The whole of European history was in the struggle—the age-old Balkan problem—the century-crowding desire of Russia to get into the sum—the division of the church into Greek and Roman—old-time hatreds of Mohammedism and Christianity—early Germanic invasion of Western and Southern Europe—the threat of the Slav—the fact of different languages and different national ideals which had been centuries in forming—all these things of the past were in the death struggle of the present.

forming—all these things of the past were in the death struggle of the present.

"This is true also of the individual. Your present is crowded with the past. What did you learn at your mother's knee? What influence came into your life from her love? What seed did you sow in your youth? What habits did you form? What were your ideals? How did you use your tongue? Who were your friends? What did you learn from them, and from books, and from life? What did you put into your blood? What did you put into your blood? Every such thing is a part of you and by so much the boundary of the present widens to include the past—so that for you and your life, and destiny the past and the present are one piece.

"The present is also big with the future. I tried a bit ago to show you how the recent world war was rooted in the past. It is just as certain that the future crowded into the conflict. All the national and international problems of the days ahead were a part of that mighty struggle.

"This is true also for the individual. You build a house. You plant a tree, You sow the seed. You train your hand and your brain. You toil and strain, and save, not just for today but for tomorrow. Tomorrow is in your toil. The future is in your present, determining its motive, controlling its activity, and emphasizing its ambition. The life of today with the need of tomorrow. The present is big with the future and without the future, the present would shrink to nothing.

Memory Is Gate.

Memory Is Gate.

"But I wanted to show you how our lives are enriched by this merging of the tenses. What a shut-in thing life would be if the present was wailed up! But it is not so. Memory is a wonderful gate by which the past is left open to us. It is a window through which we may see into the past. It is a great warehouse in which we may store the possessions of the past. It is a casket into which we may put for safe-keeping the treasures of the past. It is the past brought into the present.

"The soul, too, is so constructed that by anticipation we may live in the future. Hope is a window in the front of the soul's house. When I was a boy I would stand often at the window in my father's home. Was not the blue grass lawn, the sugar orchard, the fields and oak forest beyond as much a part of my life as the room in which I stood? So I stand at the window of the soul and the future is mine. I borrow its treasures. I bring it into the present and it becomes a part of my life. Suppose what I see through that window of hope turns out to be unreal, a mirage, an optical delusion I would rather be cheated by hope than to have doubt keep its contract with me.

"There are two things to be on guard against. Suppose a man brings out of the past all his defeat, his disappointments, his shattered hopes, his sorrow and tries to live among them? Is there not somewhere in the memory a dark room into which these things can be thrust and locked in? Or suppose he borrows trouble from the future and runs to overtake his sorrows and fetches his defeats to him before they are due, that kind of life would break his heart. "Or suppose he lives in such fashion that the past mocks him, and condemns him, and it is as if his memory were haunted? What then? And the future promises him nothing—and hope has gone blind—what then?"

public suffers in handling its own baggage.

The strike this morning spread to Lynchburg, when 25 or 30 white clerks at the freight warehouse and freight trainmen walked out at 11 c'clock. Some of the freight trainmen quit during the night and the system made no attempt to operate a local freight to Durham, N. C. It was said 17 trainmen quit in the yards here.

No developments have as yet followed the ultimatum of members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen yesterday afternoon threatening to tie up passenger service on the road promptly at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, unless the "unsafe conditions" alleged to have arisen because of the walkout of the clerks is relieved.

Temple Baptists

Evangelist F. D. King will speak at a meeting for women at Temple Baptist church Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Last Friday more than 250 women attended a similar meeting and a big crowd is expected this week. Early this week there had been 39 additions to the church and the interest has been increasing every night. Rev. J. Carl McCoy, pastor, expects many more additions before the end of the week.

MINISTER NOMINATED.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Hampson Gary, of Texas, now consul general at Cairo, Egypt, was nominated today by President Wilson to be minister to Switzerland. He will succeed Pleasant A. Stovall, of Savannah, Ga., who re-signed recently.

Italy Will Accept Wilson's Plan For Adriatic Question

ROANOKE, W. Va., April 1.—Official information as to the number of employes out over the entire Nortolk & Western system is not available this morning, but C. B. Lane, general chairman of the clerks' union, states that about 15,000 members of all crafts are off duty.

Informatioin as to situation at other points along the road is not available, except at Winston-Salem, N. C., where clerks in the employ of the road went on strike at 12:01 this morning.

All work in the local shops is at a standstill, but traffic is being carried on without interruption, excent for the embargo on freight in less than carload lots and the inconvenience which the public suffers in handling its own baggage.

The strike this morning spread to as an independent state would be made only in case such action was necessary to protect the Italian character of the city, to guarantee the principles for which d'Annunsio went to Fiume and to insure that city possession of the port and railways.

STOCKHOLM, April 1.— English would undoubtedly be the most suitable as a world language, in the opinion of Frof. Carnoy, of Louvain University, Belgium. He made this statement in the form of a reply to the question addressed by the Northern Peace society to prominent linguists in various countries as to which language would be best adapted to universal use. After declaring in favor of English, M. Carnoy wrote:

"The German and French languages have lost their place through the war. The English language is a hospitable one, being a kind of compromise between the Latin and Germanic tongues; also it is simple and is spoken by most progressive nations of the world, and has one of the most beautiful literatures of modern times."

THE STOMACH

If your stomach is out of order consult a Chiropractor, he will tell WHY your stomach is not as it should be. He will locate the point where the pinched nerve is and ADJUST the vertebra that produced the pressure on the nerve. As soon as this is adjusted the nerve will build up and be able to carry life to the stomach. As soon as the nerve begins to perform its normal function the stomach becomes stronger, and will, in a short time, become normal. See your Chiropractor, Consultation and Spinal Analysis Free.

BUSINESS

"Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest unto your souls."

What would you do if your husband left you on a ranch with three babies?

NE day a happy wife and loving mother-the next, deserted and miserable.

What made Chaddie McKail's husband suddenly leave her? And what was the secret in his past life that only his pretty cousin knew?

Can you imagine what you would do if your husband left you? Would you consider yourself still bound to him?

And if another man fell in love with you, how would you deal with him? Would you dare to do what Chaddie did?

And how would you treat the other woman?

Don't miss a line of Arthur Stringer's story, an intimate revelation of the workings of a woman's soul-

Have women any real creative genius?

Or have men a monopoly? How does the feminine mind differ from that of man? And were Rosa Bonheur, George Eliot and Mme. Curie abnormal? Is the bearing of children the only "creative" ability woman

Dr. Kristine Mann, one of America's most distinguished women physicians answers these questions in a surprising manner in Pictorial Review for April. Dr. Mann was appointed to supervise the health and moral welfare of the Government's thousands of women war workers and certainly knows what she's talking about.

What is a home-made president?

Seventeen million women will vote for President at the next election. Think of the enormous political power they will wield.

How are women going to use this new power? Will they take full advantage of it or not? Indications point to their complete re-jection of a machine-made President. Ida Clyde Clark explains exactly why the women merica demand a home-made President.
